

Alcohol Control Zone

Police in Milton Keynes want to remind residents that alcohol control zones have been set up in parts of Milton Keynes and Central Milton Keynes following residents' call for action against alcohol related anti-social behaviour.

Under the Designated Public Place Orders (DPPOs) it is not an offence to consume alcohol, but police can ask people to stop drinking and also confiscate it. If a police officer's request is refused without a reasonable excuse, drinkers are liable to prosecution and can be fined up to £500.

Milton Keynes operates a zero tolerance approach. View the map to see the defined areas.